Intro

It's an interesting time of year, isn't it? If you've read Sir Terry Pratchett's The Thief of Time, you will remember that they used to steal time from the past when it was in abundant supply and was being wasted on reptiles. Couldn't we use a bit of extra stolen time now, when we are struggling to finish that last piece of work, get ready for Christmas and have things ready for the summer holidays? So in our multicultural society we are still celebrating a festival adapted from a northern hemisphere mid-winter celebration, but it is a time for thinking of others, giving and receiving presents, and sharing food with family and friends. We may send annual greetings to others (though perhaps we are better now at keeping in touch through social media). Most religions accept a precept that one should treat others as one would want to be treated. That must mean only giving a present one would be pleased to be given oneself, and also to consider those in our society for whom Christmas may be a time of sad memories or hardship.

This edition of the Westerly runs through January, and you will likely know that this incorporates the name of Janus, the Roman god of beginnings and changes. His images face both ways, viewing the past and the future, and it is a conventional time to look back at the year just passed and to make resolutions for the coming year. Sadly, the statistics suggest that fewer than ten per cent of people keep these resolutions, and you have a greater chance by choosing something achievable and sharing this with someone else. How about looking through this Westerly magazine and find something you can benefit from or contribute to? To paraphrase John F Kennedy, ask not what your community can do for you, ask what you can do for your community.

Have a great Christmas season and a happy and safe 2017.

Hobsonville Land Company

In 2014 HLC commissioned Alison Milne and 'Knitted Graffiti' to create a 'tree cosy' for the Pohutukawa tree on Hobsonville Point Road as a temporary artwork, and one that the community could get involved in. The knitting was anticipated to last 2 years, and it has just managed that! It's starting to look a bit tired. HLC have asked Alison if she would embark on creating a new 'outfit' for the tree, if there is interest from the community in creating a new one, and there is!

Next week the knitting will be removed and those pieces used as templates for a new outfit. The pohutukawa will remain without a tree cosy until a new one is created. Work will start on creating a new one late February 2017 and will take a few months. Anyone who is interested in knitting a section for the new tree cosy can contact me on Kathleen.waldock@hlc.co.nz. Materials will be supplied. Fortnightly get togethers will be arranged (likely to be a day time option and an evening option).

Gareth, Iki and Josh and the guys at Bridgestone Westgate wish you all a Safe and Happy Holiday.

Hobsonville Point's first Rainbow Run

Come down to Hobsonville Point's first Rainbow Run on 11 December 2016, a 5km run round Hobsonville Point with different colour stations around the course! The course will include 3 stations where volunteers will be throwing nontoxic powder at the competitors. There will be spot prizes and it is a great way to get active. Entry is open to all at $20 a head (free for under 5s) and all profits will go to KidsCan (see www.kidscan.org.nz) a charity which believes that education equals opportunity, and every child, regardless of their social economic background, should have an equal chance. KidsCan partners with low decile schools all over New Zealand to provide kids with the basics, including food, shoes, raincoats and a health programme for kids. The event will start with a briefing at 9 a.m. at Hobsonville Point Wharf. See www.hobsonvillepointrainbowrun.co.nz to register. The Rainbow Run has been developed from a Hobsonville Point Secondary School Project, making an impact.

On call through Christmas

Waitakere Volunteer Fire Brigade wishes you all a safe and Merry Christmas! We thank you all for your support throughout the year. To our wives, husbands, partners, children, family, friends, work colleagues, team mates and anyone else we have had to up and leave at the sound of the siren - thanks for your support.

We were very busy over the Guy Fawkes weekend. The first alarm went off late Thursday night to send specialist rural fire fighters to Browns Island to try and control the fire during the night. Over the following two days Waitakere sent a further team of fire fighters and a Logistics Officer to help coordinate the helicopters, boats and equipment.

On Saturday night we were all back home resting when the alarm went off again to a bonfire that had spread to a hedge of trees. Sunday was the same as Saturday with a large scrub fire that got out of control.

The hours of training have paid off and we were more than happy to be able to help out in the greater Auckland region.

Have a safe and happy holiday break with your family! Keep safe, Denis Cooper, Officer in Charge - Waitakere Volunteer Fire Brigade, phone 09 810 9251.

Christmas can be stress free

Christmas is a busy time of year which, despite the fun and festivities, brings many challenges. It is a time full of parties and family gatherings. It is important to take time so that this season can be enjoyed.

- Keep expectations manageable - this Christmas doesn't have to be the "best ever". It should be the most enjoyable. Organise yourself and be realistic about what you can and cannot do. Don't spend too much time organising for just one day - Christmas. The Christmas season is a marathon not a sprint - so pace yourself.
- Enjoy Holiday activities which are free. Take a drive to look at the Christmas decorations. Go window shopping and don't buy anything.
- Do something for someone else. You could invite someone who has no family to join your celebrations. Christmas can be a very lonely time for some.

- Get Moving. Go for a walk. It's time to let your hair down and dance at parties. Go for a swim. Take a picnic to one of our wonderful beaches or parks.

- Be Generous - but be sensible. Yes we all want to be generous, but it's silly to get into debt. Christmas is a time for giving and sharing, but don't give more than what you have. You could make some presents, or give a token with a promise of a gift, such as babysitting, washing the car, housework, or going on an outing. If you come from a large family you could do a lucky dip, and each just buys for one family member.

- Don't eat or drink too much. This is the time of year when it can be easy to give in to excess. Too much alcohol can make you irritable and tired. Pace yourself.

- Don't try to be perfect or do everything. Saying no can be hard, but you need to look after yourself. Do what you reasonably can, if you take on too much you'll disappoint yourself and others.

- Remember what's important. Have fun. Remember in the end it's not the presents people remember, it's having fun with family and friends. So take time to play with the children, they'll remember the family cricket or soccer game in the back yard long after their presents have broken.

Seasons Greetings from your friends at Citizens Advice Massey, and for help when things go wrong we can be contacted on 09 833 5775 or massey@cab.org.nz.

Community Policing Centre

With all the new building developments happening in the area, Police have seen an increased rate in thefts and burglaries happening at various building sites around these areas. If you are out walking, cycling or travelling in your vehicle and see anything you do not feel comfortable with, please report the activity you observe straight away.

There is a misconception from the general public that 111 is purely an emergency telephone number. This is not always the case, and Police urge members of the public to call 111 or *555 when seeing any suspicious persons, vehicles or other incidents in your neighbourhood. It is better and more likely Police will speak to or apprehend suspects and offenders if it is reported on these numbers at the time, not waiting until the next day to report to the local Police Station. It is for the call dispatchers to decide the priority given to the incidents, so please do not feel you are wasting Police time calling 111 or *555 for what you think are trivial incidents. Remember, registration numbers, colour, type and make of vehicles are important.

The herb column

Lavender oil – An ideal oil to put in your First Aid Kit in the car. Known for its anti-inflammatory, antifungal, antidepressant, antiseptic, antibacterial and antimicrobial properties. It also has antispasmodic, analgesic, detoxifying, hypotensive and sedative effects.

Use it as a relief for muscle or joint pain, as well as for skin conditions like burns, acne and wounds. Make sure to dilute it with carrier oil e.g. Sweet Almond oil available at the supermarket. As an inhaler add a few drops to a bowl of hot water, and then breathe in the steam. Use as a compress by soaking a towel in a bowl of water infused with a few drops of lavender oil. Apply this to sprains or muscle injuries.

I also recommend adding lavender oil to your list of natural cleaning products. You can mix it with baking soda to make an all-natural antibacterial scrub for your bathroom and kitchen. Hobsonville Herb Group - hobsonvilleherbgroup@gmail.com.

Moving schools

For most children, moving schools or making that jump from intermediate to high school can be a big deal. If the family works together it can mean a lot less stress all round. Your child will probably be experiencing a mixture of emotions ranging from excitement to a sense of loss and even fear. The move from intermediate or full primary to high school is especially confusing in many ways. Children have to deal with both 'endings' and sadness while at the same time anticipating new beginnings. This may include feelings of excitement and nervous anticipation. Old friends may be left behind and the fear of the unknown looms ahead.

Even for well-adjusted children this can be a daunting experience. If your child is struggling in other ways due to family disruption, moving to a new location, falling behind in their school work or other problems, the thought of all the change involved with moving to a new school can be daunting. However, there is plenty you can do to make this a positive experience for your child:

- Do some research yourself so you can understand the emotions your child may be experiencing
- Remember, kids don't always know how to express their feelings, they may act out in other ways instead of talking about how they are feeling
- Put yourself in their shoes - think back to your first day at a new school or high school

- Make sure they are confident in their school work. It's important that reading and maths skills are up to standard before they enter high school
- Ensure you are ready as a family - take care of the practical things such as uniforms, books and school bags
- Be patient! It may take time for your pre-teen to adjust to their new environment

The Christmas break is an opportunity to take stock of your finances and plan for 2017 and beyond

If you're a NZ resident with a company or private pension in the UK, you have three options to consider: either leave it where it is, move it to a SIPP (Self Invested Personal Pension) or transfer it to a NZ QROPS (Qualifying Recognised Overseas Pension Scheme).

An independent pension transfer specialist can help you weigh up your priorities, so that you can determine which action is most appropriate for you and your personal goals.

Tony Chamberlain of GBPensions says, "Although Brexit concerned many people, it has actually had a positive effect on the transfer value of some UK pension funds. My advice is not to wait and worry, but to investigate now. Once you've all the facts in front of you then you can make a truly informed decision."

A pension transfer to a SIPP or NZ QROPS may not be relevant or appropriate in all instances. The decision whether to transfer or not is complex, and it is important to consider the benefits, risks and disadvantages before determining if a transfer is suitable.

The Hobsonville Point Hobby Hub

The Hobsonville Point Hobby Hub is a loose federation of interest groups. These include:

- The Technical Project Sharing Group which runs free during evenings that often include a show and tell element, with topics such as: 3D printing, Arduino & Raspberry Pi projects and engineering. The goal is to chat and share projects that members are busy with. This group is still in the early stages and is open to ideas.
- The Hobby Hipsters are Hobsonville Point musicians with the sole purpose of making music for community events. Its repertoire is based on popular cover songs. This venture is very new and will need some time before being let loose on the community.

If you are interested in joining either of these groups please contact Ross 021 240 1827.

There are also some Local Knitters working with Katherine Waldock of HLC to renew the knitted tree at the top of Hobsonville Point Road, and a Community Garden is in an advanced state of preparation with first plots planned soon in Buckley Avenue (over the road from the new notice board).

When public rooms and facilities come available from next year, we hope more groups (such as a Menz Shed and even a chamber orchestra) will be formed to represent a wider range of interests.

For more information please contact Grant Dixon: grantdixon@orcon.net.nz or search for 'Hobby Hub' on neighbourly.co.nz.

Christmas trees of remembrance

Kiwis are being encouraged to remember someone special in the lead up to Christmas, and at the same time contribute to a good cause. Hospice West Auckland is again teaming up with retailer Farmers, national partner of Hospice New Zealand, for the annual Trees of Remembrance fundraising campaign at Farmers stores throughout West Auckland.

In exchange for a donation, you will receive a beautiful remembrance card to write your personal message and place on the dedicated Remembrance Tree in-store. All funds raised will ensure hospice care and support to people with life-limiting conditions are provided at no cost to patients and their families. The Christmas trees can be found in all West Auckland Farmers stores, and in shopping malls and precincts around West Auckland from 21 November until Christmas Eve.

In addition to the Trees of Remembrance, Farmers will also be retailing the collector's Christmas decoration – a beautiful glass Christmas decoration, this year featuring a golden manuka flower motif designed by the artist FLOX. Retailing for $10, all proceeds go to support Hospice West Auckland.

Take time to remember your loved ones this Christmas, and support Hospice West Auckland's patients and their families at the same time.

Auckland Kindergarten Association

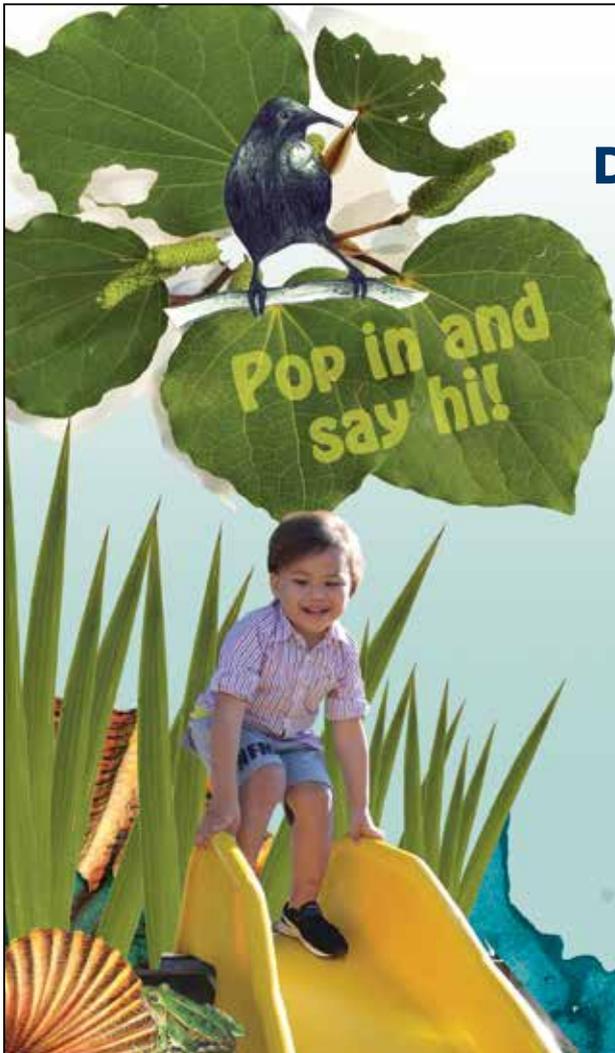

Kindergarten is a special place where children, parents and teachers come together to build amazing communities and life-long friends. For many of us, kindergarten is where we began our life of learning; where we started learning important life skills like sharing, tolerance, patience, respect and self-confidence. Kindergarten gave us room to run, explore and imagine. Today, kindergarten is still the most natural and authentic way for children to learn and it continues to give them the best foundations for life. Auckland Kindergarten Association (AKA) is a charitable trust established in 1908 with the purpose of improving educational outcomes for children. Right on your doorstep alongside Don Buck Road, you can find Don Buck and Massey kindergartens, where qualified teachers nurture your child's interests and natural curiosity, with large outdoor spaces with lots of room to explore and offering 20 hours free Early Childhood Education. Pop in and say Hi!

Cruising PNG and the Conflict Islands

I have just returned from cruising around PNG and the Conflict Islands. My husband didn't want to go as he thought he would get a blow dart in the back. My thoughts were: remote, unspoilt, learn more about the war and seeing war remnants and great snorkeling. We departed from Cairns and visited 4 ports in 7 days on the beautiful P&O Pacific Aria. If you want to learn about the war in Alotau you need to book this tour early, it sold out and we couldn't get on and instead visited the Cultural Centre. This was fabulous with local tribes showing their dances and costumes, music, beating their drums and it was full of colour. I didn't expect the locals to speak good English but a lot of them have been educated in Australia which I found surprising. Our last call at the Conflict Islands was my highlight with a beautiful white sand beach and great snorkeling. Our verdict is that this is a great cruise for those wanting to see PNG before it becomes more touristy and we thoroughly enjoyed it. Carolyn is the

Hot rod heaven

Ken and Desma Galvin love cars.

It's what brought the two Kumeu Classic Car and Hot Rod Festival organisers together in the first place.

Desma had her car broken into in Auckland and wiring pulled out. "I was walking down the road crying and Ken and his brother were leaning over their fence. I thought 'here's a guy who can fix my car,'" Desma recalls.

That was about 40 years ago, and they've been married ever since.

Both were interested in cars early on. Ken grew up in a family of car enthusiasts and was so keen he fudged his age to get his driver's licence at 14.

"I've always been into cars," he says. "I love old machinery and talking to the people involved."

The self-confessed "tinkerer" will tackle anything with an engine, like the golf cart with a GSX-1100 motor he's working on. They have seven vehicles at their Kumeu home, including a 1948 Ford truck Ken's working on for their son. Yes, their children and grandchildren have the car bug. Ken's doing up a kid's drift kart for grandson Indiana Galvin-Pates, 1, already showing a fascination for machinery.

Some vehicles are used regularly, like the 1938 Chevrolet coupe Ken got for Desma on Mother's Day in 1987. Others need work, such as the Pontiac yellow taxi used in Sir Peter Jackson's King Kong movie.

"It's a way of life," Ken says. He's a life member of the New Zealand Hot Rod Association and Wheels Incorporated, as well as being a National Street Rod Association member.

Ken's passion, particularly through custom painting and pin-striping cars, led to him owning a corporate branding company. He did many of the 1990 Auckland Commonwealth Games signs.

The couple have been involved in the Kumeu hot rod show from the outset and are already preparing for a big 25th show anniversary in 2019.

Meanwhile, they're hard at work on the 23rd festival on January 21 and 22 at the Kumeu Showgrounds. It attracts more than 40,000 people, and has international interest.

At least 5500 classic cars and hot rods feature in the festival's outdoor displays. Showground sheds include a construction shed with cars in various rebuild stages, one for custom built and painted cars where the People's Choice award winner is usually found, and a model car display. A Mad Max style "Volks-rod salvage wagon" was last year's People's Choice and features on posters for this festival.

A Miss Kumeu contest is introduced for girls 10 and under, with other categories including up to 21-year-olds and a Mrs Kumeu section, contestants dressing 1950s style for prizes. The same theme is carried through the "Retro-o-rama" market area.

A Jimi Hendrix Tribute Show features on the Saturday and the Dreams Fleetwood Mac Tribute Show is on Sunday, both 11am - 5pm.

American style dragsters or "funny cars" will do fire-ups at Gasoline Alley, while show visitors can explore more than 70 trade stalls, check the "swap meet", sample some of the 26 food stalls, or test the children's rides and firefighters' Wendy House.

Kumeu Lions are collecting for surf life saving, and show entry is $15 adult and under-12 free on Saturday 7am - 6pm and Sunday 8am-5pm. Parking's free and a ban applies to motorcycles, dogs and showground "cruising".

Market report with Graham

Let's consider the facts in this market. Houses are selling, albeit slower than normal and at prices comparable with sales over the last 12 months but without the month on month increases expected previously. The global influences on mortgage funding is not yet overly evident and banks continue to operate in an envelope of cautiousness. The reserve bank is signaling a need to boost and stimulate the market with a reduction in the .25% base rate. Very attractive rates are available for fixed term mortgages through HSBC, Kiwibank and TSB Bank and shopping around is important in this market. Consider where you want to be in three years and make some decisions about where you are, and where you want to be. Having a plan and working towards that goal is very important. It starts with understanding.

Herald Island residential $840,000 to $960,000

Whenuapai residential $850,000 to $1,635,000

Hobsonville residential $900,000 to $1,250,000

West Harbour residential $670,000 to $1,180,000

Royal Heights residential $645,000 to $1,279,000

Massey residential $536,000 to $985,000

Waitakere Township residential $745,000 to $780,000

Before you start your journey I would like to meet with you to discuss your many options, the strength within this market, options that you may not have considered and in turn the time frames that you should consider. While I appreciate you have many agents and realtor partners to choose from, I believe that I offer a very honest and transparent approach that will deliver peace of mind and drive confidence.

Money matters

If you are thinking of buying an older style villa and in particular, anything built before 1940, you need to be aware that an insurer is likely to ask some specific questions around things like the piling of the home and the electrics. Specifically, in relation to electrics, older style wiring. You will most likely recognise it when you see it because it is generally wrapped in fabric insulation rather than modern day plastic. It can be deemed to be a fire hazard. The Insurer may ask for an Electrician's Certificate, or in a worse-case scenario, for the dwelling to be re wired.

My tip is to obtain a builders report before you buy and at the

New Year's resolutions for home sellers

With every New Year comes a raft of noble New Year's resolutions – eat healthier, join a gym, quit smoking, save money, manage debt and the list goes on. However, if you're thinking about selling your home in 2017, then here are some resolutions that could help boost your chances of a swift and successful sale.

- Avoid over-spending on renovations

Sometimes people will look to renovate their home prior to selling with the intention of adding extra value. However it pays to tread carefully, mammoth makeovers are very risky and it's best not to try and anticipate what buyers want in terms of décor and design. Remember that renovations don't necessarily translate to market value. Smaller and more affordable ways to add value to your home could be as simple as replacing door handles or updating kitchen cabinetry.

- Don't neglect minor repairs

It's a wise idea to set aside a few weekends to fix those pesky pieces that need to be repaired. Whether it be that dripping tap or small crack in the wall - ensure that they aren't a symptom of a larger problem that will crop up in a builder's report. Rope in a friend or family member to take a tour through your home. Ask them what imperfections meet the eye and make sure they are brutally honest. They will pick up on things that potential home owners will also notice.

- Always be one step ahead

It's important that you don't let your future plans get lost in the whirlwind of selling your home. It's best to be prepared for where you will be going once your home has sold - especially if it sells quickly! On the other hand, you also need to prepare yourself with a plan B if your home doesn't sell quite as quickly as you anticipated. Mike Pero Real Estate phone 0800 900 700. Licensed REAA (2008).

Deck and Fence Pro

After withstanding all sorts of weather for years, wooden decks, fences and outdoor furniture can look decidedly unattractive. Replacing them completely or trying to restore them yourself can involve lots of time, expense and frustration. But now there's another option that's not only affordable, but will also bring them back to their original beauty, just in time for summer.

Deck and Fence Pro specialise in the complete restoration of weathered decks, fences, garden furniture and more – and the results are so good they astound customers, say local franchise owners Zane and Jaimi Scott. Fully trained in the latest techniques they employ professional cleaning and restoration technology which is environmentally friendly. They use Deck and Fence Pro's own range of special cleaning solutions before applying the companies specially formulated range of linseed oil-based stains - or paint if you prefer, to make the restored items look like new. Removing UV damage, lichen, dirt and stains is no problem and the service is quick and efficient. The company also cleans and restores brick, block and plaster fences, as well as water blasting to clean driveways, garden paths and other outdoor areas.

Deck and Fence Pro also supply and fit garage carpet, an option that appeals to an increasing number of people using their garage as extra living space. Carpet can be professionally fitted in just half a day and will transform the look of your garage. Relationship property agreements Relationship property is something which must be shared equally between the parties at the end of a relationship. However, there are 3 sorts of relationship property agreements. The first is often called a prenuptial agreement because it comes before the relationship is one which qualifies for the equal sharing provisions under the property relationships act 1976 ("PRA"). The 2nd is often made during our relationship and endeavours to contract out of the equal sharing provisions for various reasons. Reasons include protecting assets to ensure children from a prior relationship are protected. The 3rd sort is usually made at the end of a relationship and usually allows for any equal sharing of the relationship assets as at the end of the relationship. Frequently, it will involve a division of actual assets as between each party as an alternative to an outright sale of all of the assets. In each case, a PRA agreement is not binding unless it has a lawyer's certificate. It could therefore allow your ex-partner to ask for further assets from you at a later date. It is essential to involve your lawyer in making and carrying out such agreements. Luke Kemp, phone 09 412 6000 or email luke@kempsolicitors.co.nz.

Independent pre-purchase house inspections

If you are investing in residential property, an Independent Pre-Purchase House Inspection takes some of the stress out of property transactions by providing a comprehensive building report of all aspects of the property; you can then precede in your property transactions with full transparency.

We place special emphasis on leak detection, movement or subsidence, unusual signs of deterioration, insect infestation, and any other concerns that may affect the value of a property. See below for the list of what is included in the inspection.

Our promise to you:

- Your inspection will be carried out in a thorough and professional manner by a very experienced and competent builder
- We will provide a verbal report by phone, and via e-mail a detailed written report clearly outlining all findings.
- A certification is given with each report that the inspection has been carried out according to NZ Standards 4036:2005.

• We are totally independent and work only in the interest of the perspective purchaser.

• We cover the entire Auckland area, from Orewa to Pukekohe and beyond.

• Reports are promised within 24 hours but are usually sent on the same day as the inspection.

• Competitive prices – from $350 (single level, verbal only).

About Us - Our inspectors Kevin and Keith have over 100 years building experience between them.

There is a lifetime of experience behind our eyes. Call us today, we're here to help. Kevin: 021 288 0101 or kevinmontgomerie@gmail.com.

Sparkn Electrical

Well, it is that time of year again, although the weather has not been too warm as I write. We are now very much involved in checking out camper vans and boats, making sure they are as summer ready as they can be. Now is a great time to check the batteries and run up all the systems and making sure you have enough battery capacity for some time away over the (hopefully) beautiful summer months.

We can install LEDS in boats, houses, gardens, pools and campers, not only to save power and reduce the load on generators but to enhance entertainment areas. For further information on how SPARKN Electrical can make your life easier, please contact Tony on 021 772 756.

Caring for your Japanese Maple

Awa Nursery has some stunning specimen size Acer Palmatums (Japanese Maples) in stock. Beautiful stunning reds and greens are such an eye catcher in the garden and these are no exception.

The Japanese Maples are very versatile and adaptable trees. They thrive in most soils and climatic conditions. Care and attention at planting time is key to a healthy maple. Japanese Maples have a shallow fibrous root system. Be sure to apply a mulch around the tree to help retain moisture. Your planting site must be reasonably well-drained to avoid waterlogging. Your maples will thrive if they are planted in a location where they get sunlight during the day, a small amount of shade in the afternoon, and are sheltered from the wind. Sunlight enables the deep rich colours in the foliage. Major pruning should be done in the dormant season after all the leaves have fallen off. Corrective pruning can be done at any time of the year except between late winter and early spring when the tree is devoting all of its energy into the development of new foliage.

Many Japanese maples are well suited to growing in containers. It is important the tree is planted in a mix that drains well to prevent waterlogging of the roots. Looking after a maple is surprisingly easy. Some care and attention at planting time will result in a low maintenance tree for years to come – Japanese maples can live for up to 150 years. Come and visit us at Awa Nursery and see for yourself these beautiful specimen Japanese Maples or contact us on phone 09 411 8712 or visit www.awanursery.co.nz.

Here we are in spring with abundant pasture

This pasture is ideal for stock, rich in nutrients, low in fibre and highly digestible. Now is the time to plan how best to use this feed. You want to keep your pasture at the leafy green stage. Graze your paddocks hard and most importantly, evenly, rotate your paddocks or strip graze more frequently than at other times of the year.

If you still have excess feed, think about turning it into silage, talk to a contractor about this, they will advise when it's best to cut before it turns to hay. Once cut, apply some nitrogen fertiliser to get them going again, this should help you keep green feed into summer. When pasture dries out in February you will have that silage to feed out. Topping your paddocks after grazing will get rid of the long stalks that stock avoid. Don't top too low if its dry, this will keep the sun off the roots and stop the soil from baking.

NIWA believe we should have a fairly normal summer with the chance of slightly higher rainfall and temperatures. Let's hope so, I am over these blustery conditions. If you need help finding rural services talk to your local produce stores or give me a call, I know a wide range of contractors to help you make the most of your lifestyle block.

Dan's Tips

December 2016

It's a full-on growing time, so with a few simple garden tasks completed, you can put your feet up and enjoy Christmas in your own piece of paradise!

In the Vegetable garden

- Leek Planting Tips – Digger prefers the newspaper wrapped seedlings from Awapuni Nurseries: www.awapuni.co.nz/online-shopping. It is best to drop leek seedlings into deep holes around 20cm deep and let the soil gradually fill in the hole by itself. By planting so deeply you are blanching the leeks (creating the white part). Old gardeners tip: cut off half the green foliage straight after planting
- Watering is best done daily, or minimum three times a week at the roots of your vegetable plants. Adding straw or other organic mulches around edibles reduces the amount of water required – good practice if you have limited water over summer
- Herby heaven – imagine a table at Christmas groaning with the weight of smart salads packed with lots of herbs – that's perfect because basil, coriander, mint and dill are fast-growers and need constant harvesting!
- Potatoes – Continue to hill up the ones that are mid-season ripening, but look out for the yellowing tips of the early season spuds – you might get a feed in time for Christmas Dinner!
- Get your bug-life in balance – there's a lot of leaf-sucking and munching going on, so control whitefly, aphids, scale and mites with the all-organic Aquaticus Bugtrol

Fill up those potatoes

The Ornamental Garden

- Water as a feature – the hotter it gets, the more we appreciate water outdoors. Birdbaths, bowls of water lilies or other aquatic plants are an easy way to enjoy water in the garden. A good design effect can be achieved with a 'dry riverbed' – usually this is a serpentine path of stones with curving base giving the effect of sides of a riverbank
- Red is traditionally the Christmas flower colour (a la Pōhutukawa in flower), but any garden looks great with hot shades of pinks, reds and corals – colours of geraniums, petunias and impatiens – annuals that are easy to grow and flower quickly
- Deadheading roses, giving spent lavender flowers a trim and cutting back spring flowering shrubs – all give the summer garden an instant makeover!

The Christmas Lawn

A wet spring generally favours lawns and leaves them looking lush. But if your lawn tends to go from boggy to hard-baked clay in summer, now is the time to apply Prolawn's Aquaturf G. It's a safe, natural wetting agent that, when applied to lawns, will help cure problems of dry patches that develop through a hot summer

North West Business Awards

The inaugural North West Business Awards is set to launch. The Awards, initiated by the North West District Business Association (NWDBA) and sponsored by many local businesses, aims to find the 'Best in Business' amongst a range of categories, celebrate their success and communicate both the quality and quantity of businesses in the North West District. There are eight different categories to enter and two special awards: Retail, Hospitality (non-licensed), Hospitality (licensed), Recreation, Health & Beauty, Business & Professional Services, Rural Services, Manufacturing and Trade, The People's Choice Award and The Supreme Award. Nominations will open in December and run through until the end of January and participants may nominate their own business or any other business within the NZDBA boundaries. Following the nominations, finalists will be selected, a mystery shopping firm will assess all of the entrants on customer service attributes and formal entries will be submitted. The event culminates in a black tie Awards dinner in early April 2017. Nomination forms will be in retail shops across the district in December and further information can be found on the NWDBA website (www.northwestcountry.co.nz).

Why get stronger?

Light walking is not enough to preserve muscle tone, bone health, balance, and posture. If you're not engaging in strength training, chances are you'll become increasingly less functional with age. Strength training becomes more important with age. It has many benefits, and is an essential element if you want to prevent weakening of your bones (osteoporosis), age-related muscle loss (sarcopenia), limited range of motion, aches and pains. Strength training also increases your body's production of growth factors, some of which also promote the survival of neurons, which helps explain why working your muscles also benefits your brain and helps prevent dementia. It should be an integral part of a well-rounded exercise program, and is recommended for both sexes of all ages—especially adults. It's important to realize that by the time you're in your 70s, your muscle strength and tone will have declined by roughly 25 percent from what you had in your mid-30s. You'll lose up to 50 percent once you approach your 90s. Something worthwhile noting is that in seniors who take up strength training, the genes' clocks can be turned back by as much as a decade! Turn Up the Intensity by Slowing It Down... Current research is showing that super-slow weight training may have superior benefits, and may also be a more suitable form of high intensity exercise for older individuals. It is much safer and more effective than conventional strength training as it actively prevents you from accidentally harming your joints or suffering repetitive use injury. Research shows that, no matter your age, you stand to gain significant improvements in strength, range of motion, balance, bone density, and mental clarity through strength training. It's never too late. But clearly, the sooner you start, the better. When it comes to bone and muscle strength, it's clearly a lot harder to regain what you've lost than maintain what you already have. The Choir took part in the Kumeu Brass Band concert on Saturday, 29 October in the Kumeu Community Centre. The choir presented Verdi's 'Chorus of the Hebrew Slaves' accompanied by Kumeu Brass. This was followed by 'Where Else in Town'

Build: New

It was amazing to hear of the success our franchise group experienced at the recent Westpac NZ franchise awards. These awards are promoted by the franchise association of NZ, and use a comprehensive four stage process to evaluate the associated businesses. The NZ business excellence foundation evaluated the entrants using the internationally recognised Malcolm Baldrige criteria. This is a system used to measure standards of quality in over 25 countries.

We are very proud to announce that our franchise group won the coveted Supreme Franchise System of the Year award. Our New Zealand brand boasting over 30 years of experience, was singled out for its world class systems.

One of the highlights mentioned in the judging was the independently-bonded building guarantee programme that offers security by ensuring the completion of the clients' home to the standard in the build agreement. Additionally the guarantee covers weather tightness, structural and non-structural defects. Further confidence in our company can be gained from the fact that the Ministry of Education has been using Signature Homes as their preferred builder for New Zealand's early childhood centres, since 1983, having completed 100 to date.

We welcome all enquiries. Allow us the opportunity to demonstrate our robust systems and processes, designed to aid you on the journey to your new home or business venture. Call us 0800 020 600 or 09 412 9010.

The Riverhead

I read an interesting article the other day written by Verity Johnson (from Paul Henry's bunker) about her generation, Instagram and Social Media. She explained the compulsion of taking selfies, continual posting and the seemingly intimate relationship this generation have with their personal devices. She says, they just like pretty things and want to share all their experiences with others. Is there anything wrong with that (within reason)? Maybe 'we older' people simply need to accept & embrace? Just to put it into perspective I found this quote, which is food for thought: "I see no hope for the future of our people if they are dependent on frivolous youth of today, for certainly all youth

Some call it mushroom tea or the "elixir of life," but no matter what you call it, kombucha is one of the hottest trends in health beverages. The fermented tea has been around for more than 2500 years but more recently has become popular because of its purported health benefits.

Regular kombucha drinkers claim it aids digestion, sleep, weight loss and detoxification; stimulates the immune system, stops hair loss and improves liver function. The fermented beverages are high in acid and contain sugar, vinegar, B vitamins, antioxidants (from the tea), and trace amounts of alcohol (a natural consequence of fermentation).

New Zealand winery named New World Winery of the Year

Wine Enthusiast magazine has named Kim Crawford winery 'New World Winery of the Year' in their annual Wine Star Awards, which honour outstanding achievements in the international wine and beverage industry.

"I'm so proud that we've brought this one home for New Zealand wine against the new world competition," said Kim Crawford Winemaker, Anthony Walkenhorst.

"My team and I work hard to make wines that people love to drink and we're really pleased to get a pat on the back for it from our peers and industry leaders."

In the U.S, New Zealand's largest wine export market, Kim Crawford is now New Zealand's most purchased wine brand, and produces the #1 selling Sauvignon Blanc (Source: IRI Total U.S. Multi Outlet).

"The key to Kim Crawford's success has been its consistency," says Managing Editor of Wine Enthusiast, Joe Czerwinski. "From its beginnings, the emphasis has been on fruit-forward, crowd-pleasing wines that consistently impress. For that accessible quality matched with a rapid rise in demand, Wine Enthusiast is proud to recognize Kim Crawford as its 2016 New World Winery of the Year."

Kim Crawford's New World Winery of the Year award will be featured in Wine Enthusiast's 2016 Wine Star Award issue coming out on December 31, and award winners will be honoured at the annual Wine Enthusiast black-tie Wine Star Awards ceremony in Miami on January 30, 2017.

"This prestigious award is testament to our incredibly loyal consumers and our commitment to consistently produce top-quality, distinctive wines," said Simon Towns, Managing Director of Constellation Brands NZ (Kim Crawford's parent company).

"The Kim Crawford team put in 100% from the vineyard to the glass, and I'm really pleased that they have been recognised for their dedication. We have strong partnerships with our growers and they can also be very proud of this award, we can't do it without them."

The Herbalist Craft Beer - New Lager

The Herbalist craft beer has been created by local woman Rebecca Stenbeck, who has lived in Kumeu all of her life. Rebecca was exposed to brewing from a very young age by her grandmother and has carried on this ancient tradition of women brewing for their menfolk.

Incorporating brewing and her experience as a qualified Herbalist and Naturopath has allowed Rebecca to create a range of tasty craft beers that are infused with herbs and brewed with GE-free New Zealand barley and hops.

Rebecca and her husband have just bottled a limited edition Nettle & Bilberry Lager containing six very special herbs, making this Herbal Lager perfectly suited to be enjoyed on those long, sunny, summer days we have all been waiting for.

Local stockists: The Bottle-O Huapai, Norwest Liquor, Boric Food Market Kumeu, Hobsonville Kitchen and 4 Square Parakai.

Finding an injured animal

Imagine you're on the way back from the shops and you spot a cat lying on the side of the road. You pull over to check on it, but can't see it moving. You need to check if it's alive, but how do you do that on an animal?

If you're shocked that you're not sure what to do, don't worry, you're not alone! Even though lots of us have pets, many wouldn't know what to do! This article will teach you the basics of helping an animal whether it is your own or someone else's.

First thing you need to do is look out for any signs of movement as you're approaching the animal. If the animal moves at all it is alive and you need to get it to the vet. If there is no obvious movement then focus on whether or not you can see the chest rising and falling, this will show if the animal is breathing. If you can't see the chest moving then try putting your hand in front of their face to see if you can feel their breath. If they are breathing then they are alive so get them to the vet!

If they are not breathing it is time to check for a pulse to see if the heart is still beating. Just like us you can feel for an animal's pulse on their neck but they have a lot of extra skin and fur there so it could take a while. The easiest thing to do is to feel for the femoral pulse on the inside of the animal's back leg.

If the animal has a pulse then their heart is still beating but you need to get them breathing again so start rescue breathing. If there is no pulse, the heart has stopped and you need to start compressions.

Unfortunately rescue breathing and compression can't be explained in this article but attend a PET First Aid course and you will learn these essential skills as well as many others! Laura Purkis - www.petfat.co.nz.

Summer dog care

With the weather heating up we can all look ahead to summer again. I want to share with you some useful tips to make summer easier on your furry family member. In the colder months it's great to pop your dog in the car with you as you drive around to do jobs, but as the weather heats up your car becomes an oven for your pet. It's best to leave them at home where they have access to shade and water. When you are popping out and leaving your pup at home to relax, leave out at least two water bowls in case he gets really thirsty or knocks one over. If they are inside leave a few windows open for airflow, or leaving the air conditioning on low is also a great option to keep your dog comfortable.

When walking your dog try and get out early in the morning or later at night when the pavements are cooler. Not sure if the pavement is too hot for your dog? Place the back of your hand down on the concrete and hold it there for a count of 5 - if you can't then it's too hot and you will burn your dog's paws.

But what do you do if you need to walk them when it's hot? Take your dog to a dog park where it can walk on grass or to one of Auckland's all year round dog-friendly beaches so they can get in the water (Kennedy Park or St Leonard's beach) and remember to take a bottle of drinking water with you for them too.

Most important of all is to have fun with your dog this summer. Get out in the great weather and explore around Auckland as there are some great places that you and your dog can go.

5 Top Tips - healthy skin & coat for cats and dogs

We're well into spring and that's usually associated with allergies for both humans and pets. Scratching and biting can quickly impact on the condition of your pet's skin and coat, but it's important to take into account the bigger picture, beyond just the allergy season.

The condition of your pet's skin and coat is a good indicator of their overall health. As the skin provides protection, sensory data, regulates body temperature, prevents dehydration and produces vital nutrients, looking after it year round is essential for your pet's well-being. Your pet's skin should be soft, smooth and free of lumps, flakes or raw red spots. The coat should be shiny and smooth, without bald patches or excessive loss of hair.

The Vet Care Group has teamed up with Animates to bring you the Top Five Tips for skin and coat care:

- 1) Allergies: Allergies can be difficult to diagnose, with symptoms varying greatly. If you have any concerns or notice your pet excessively scratching or licking, thinning hair, bald patches or red skin, see your vet for advice.
- 2) Brushing: All pets benefit from regular grooming sessions which should be carried out at least once a week. It's important that you use the correct tools for your pet's coat type. We recommend using a brush with widely spaced teeth for the outer layer, and a finer soft-bristle brush or comb to maintain their inner layer of fur and the fur around your pet's face. Using a slicker brush is a great way to finish grooming as it smooths down the top layer of the coat.

3) Bathing: How often your pet needs to be bathed depends on their lifestyle, age and coat type. The average dog only needs to be bathed every 4-6 weeks when they get dirty. Cats only require bathing when their coat is particularly greasy or dirty with grime or a sticky substance they can't remove themselves. It is important that you are not bathing your pet too regularly and are using a shampoo designed specifically for your pet.

4) Nutrition: A balanced diet with adequate quantities of protein will help strengthen your pet's fur as it's mainly made up of protein. Dull, fragile hair which sheds excessively can be an indication of ill health or that your pet isn't getting everything they need from their diet. The first ingredient on the food label should be a source of easily digestible protein. Omega-3 fatty acids in flaxseed and fish oil may reduce itching and inflammation in skin and add shine to a pet's coat. Zinc and vitamin A can help pets that have dry scaly skin, however it's important to always get your vet's recommendation on supplements suitable for your pet as excessive amounts may cause harm if given for long periods of time.

5) Flea and parasite control: Keeping your pet's flea and parasite treatments up-to-date is vital to their health. The presence of parasites can lead to allergic reactions, infections and itchiness and discomfort for your pet, all of which are avoidable with regular treatment.

Pilates – what is it?

Pilates is a complete exercise method, developed by German-born Joseph Pilates who believed mental and physical health were closely connected and is suitable for people of all ages and levels of ability and fitness. Pilates is based on eight principles: relaxation, alignment, control, precision, routine, breathing, centering, and flowing movement, helping you develop an awareness of how your body works. It focuses on building your body's core strength (back, abdominal and pelvic muscles) through a series of low repetition, low impact stretching and conditioning exercises. Pilates can help improve posture, muscle tone, balance and joint mobility, as well as relieve stress and tension. Exercises can be done on a mat without special equipment. Shamrock Physio holds Pilates classes on Tuesday and Friday mornings and Monday and Tuesday evenings with qualified instructors. For further details and enquiries check our website www.shamrockphysio.kumeu.co.nz or call us on 09 412 2945.

Summer is coming

As the warmer weather starts, there are a few factors to keep in mind regarding our feet. Here are a few tips to keep your feet happy over the warmer months:

- Regularly moisturise your feet. When our feet come out of shoes into sandals/jandals/bare feet they dry out. Dry feet build up callus (hard skin) faster. If the skin is particularly dry the callus can split, leading to discomfort and pain.
- Avoid long periods of time with nail polish on. Nail polish can compromise the integrity of the nail and make it more susceptible to fungal infections. If you have a fungal infection the nail polish seals the infection in and can act as an incubator. If this is a foreign concept to you, try and go one week polish free between applications.
- Use an antifungal powder if your feet are trapped in hot sweaty shoes all day. Fungal spores love this type of environment and flourish in the warmer weather. This is good preventative care to ensure you don't get stuck with a fungal infection.
- Warm up and cool down when partaking in sports. The warmer weather generally brings more activity and for those that have been more sedentary over winter this can be a shock to the musculoskeletal system. It is a good idea to ease into your activities slowly increasing how frequently you are partaking or the duration of the activity. This will help avoid injury. Another great way to avoid injury is to do a gentle warm up prior to exercise and a cool down and stretch at the end of your activity, again this helps to lessen the risk of injury.

- Stretch your feet. When barefoot and in sandals there are different loads on the muscles of the foot and ankle compared with closed shoes. This can mean the muscles in your feet are working much harder! It is a good idea to stretch your feet every evening to loosen these muscles. Rolling your foot over a tennis ball or cricket ball works well to loosen the tightened muscles of the foot.

If you would like some foot stretches sent to you please email: info@hobsonvillepodiatry.co.nz Lauren Peet is the Podiatrist at Hobsonville Podiatry, level 1, 124 Hobsonville Road.

The pain of a pulled elbow

Sadly, it is not often in medicine that a doctor is able to instantly 'heal' a patient. Most of my job as a GP and an Urgent Care physician involves monitoring chronic conditions and organising tests in order to make a diagnosis. And once the diagnosis is made, I oversee that the patient gets better; or is adequately managed. This often takes time.

One exception to this is a common condition called a pulled elbow. This is an injury that affects young children, usually under the age of five. Another name for this is a 'radial head subluxation'. A subluxation basically means a minor dislocation, and the radial head is the beginning of the radius (one of the forearm bones) which makes up part of the elbow joint.

A pulled elbow mostly occurs in one of a few circumstances. It can happen when a child is pulled forcibly by the hand by an adult. This can be when a child is swung by the hands or when a child runs from an adult and the adult pulls them back. This force can be strong enough to pop the radial head out of its correct position within the joint. The result of this is usually a child who refuses to use the arm and, when questioned, points to pain in the elbow or the forearm.

If this happens, the child needs to be taken to the doctor where they can have the elbow relocated. Often this can be done without needing to do an x-ray. This manoeuvre is quick and simple for a trained doctor, but the child must be examined by a doctor because sometimes an x-ray is required to rule out a fracture. Usually the elbow clicks into place during the manoeuvre. Afterwards the child is placed into the play area in the waiting room. After a little apprehension the child usually starts to use the elbow as before. The child still needs monitoring; particularly for the next three weeks as the elbow can easily pop out of place again. If this happens, then they need to be brought back to see the doctor.

The main thing to remember is never to pick a child up by the hands. I have seen dozens of these injuries and although most children fully recover, suffering from a pulled elbow and having it manoeuvred back into place is never a pleasant experience for children and parents alike! Dr Isabelle Duck is a GP and Urgent Care doctor at Westgate Medical Centre.

Did you know laser dentistry can help you fight cold sores?

Unlike other cold sore treatments, such as creams or ointments, lasers get to the root of the problem. They destroy the herpes simplex virus that actually causes cold sores.

Laser treatment isn't a cutting procedure. There is virtually zero discomfort during or following laser treatment of cold sores. There is no injection of anesthesia. It's simply not needed. The only sensation you might feel during the treatment is a warm feeling as the laser works. Cold sores can be uncomfortable and inconvenient. They tend to break out at the most inconvenient time. They generally break out in response to trauma, overexposure to sun or whenever physical or psychological stress levels rises and is generally common before a significant event in your life. If you catch the cold sore on time with laser treatment you can prevent it from breaking out. Once you experience the tingling sensation, it's only a matter of time before a full-blown sore appears. Make an appointment as soon as you have this tingling feeling. If you already have a full blown sore the treatment will take away the discomfort and help it to heal much faster.

Why is laser treatment better than other cold sore treatments?

- Treatment takes just a few minutes and without anesthesia
- It is high tech, yet affordable
- Patients receive immediate and drastic relief right after the treatment is over.
- Over time, lasers can get rid of cold sore breakouts in a specific area forever.
- Lasers get to the root of the problem by killing the virus.
- Laser treatment can prevent breakouts before they occur and stops them once they begin.
- Healing time is much shorter after a laser treatment with no more symptoms.
- Cold sore breakouts will occur less frequently and intensely in the area treated.

Do you feel cold sores developing? Contact Westgate Dental Centre today to arrange an appointment.

Why sitting can be so bad for our bodies

Anecdotally, 80% of our clients who experience spinal pain, predominantly have sit down jobs. Our musculo-skeletal systems like movement. Of course excessive loads such as a heavy lift have the potential for injury, but the insidious loading of our muscles, tendons and nerves through poor posture can accumulate strain and load over days, weeks or even years. This accumulation explains why seemingly trivial mechanisms cause significant injury or appear for no obvious reason. This sneaky buildup of strain can be minimized by attention to ergonomics, regular movement and staying fit through good exercise. Once you start experiencing symptoms, it is important to identify the primary contributing structures which are not always where the pain is coming from and address the underlying causes. If you're unlucky enough to be in this category, early management is best. Call Hobsonville Physiotherapy on 09 416 4455.

Why am I sore after massage?

So you've been for a therapeutic/deep tissue or sports massage and the next day you woke up feeling like a truck ran over you! The massaged part of your body is tender to the touch and perhaps a little puffy. It is common to have some mild pain and even slight swelling after receiving deep corrective massage - this is called therapeutic inflammation. It's the result of new white blood cells arriving at the area to clean out all the old, dead waste products in your tissues. Unfortunately, that can cause a little discomfort. Sometimes when muscles are tight for a long period of time, your brain can shut off sensation to that area. Massage re-awakens your brain's awareness of those tissues, causing tons of new working blood cells to come in and clean everything out that has built up over time.

The takeaway is that massage can be uncomfortable at times but should never be intolerably painful. Stay hydrated, communicate your comfort levels with your therapist and be aware of the original reasons for coming in for a massage. Take care of yourself over summer

With Christmas and the holidays fast approaching, we are going to be spending more time playing outside with the kids, going to the beach and mucking around in the garden, etc. Unfortunately, this is often a time for increased injuries. Reduce the risk of injury by warming up properly, staying within your limits, continuing your stretching program and avoiding too much time slouched on the couch. If you are unfortunate enough to get an injury, make sure you look after it properly. We will be open during the Christmas and New Year period. If you need help, call the clinic on 09 413 5312 to make an appointment. Also visit our website for more information. Your body will thank you for it. Probiotics

Probiotics are good bacteria that help support good health and vitality. Probiotics are great at helping improving your digestion, reducing symptoms of irritable bowel, increasing the resistance to infections and boosting your immune system. This is possible because around 70% of your immune system resides in the gut.

The imbalance of good and bad bacteria can be caused by diet, lifestyle, excess alcohol, stress, certain medications and exposure to toxic substances. Yoghurt does provide some probiotics, but to a much lesser extent. For example, one capsule of an Inner Health Plus probiotic is equivalent to 22 tubs of yoghurt! Probiotics have been commonly used in conjunction with antibiotics, as antibiotics kill both good and bad bacteria. It is important to ensure there is at least a two hour window between the antibiotic and probiotic, to ensure no beneficial bacteria is also killed off. For best results, it is recommended to carry on with the probiotic for at least four weeks afterwards. However to aid in general wellbeing, digestion and immune system, regular use is recommended.

There are many probiotics available on the market, some shelf stable and some fridge stable. Available in capsules or powder for children. They also contain different strains which help in many different ways. There are specific probiotics which research has shown works better for irritable bowel syndrome, eczema and allergies. It is very important to get the right strain and the right doses, so it is important to talk to your pharmacist to see what product is best for you.

Geopathic stress

Geopathic stress is NOT new; it has been around since day dot. However, in the last 20 years we have changed the earth more than any other time in history, and certainly in the last 10 years with the massive increase in cell phones, WiFi and Wireless everything. By the end of 2016, we will reach 2.1 billion mobile phones in the world...wow.

The Earth's magnetic fields have always been there, as has underground water. With 70% of Earth's water underground, that is not hard to work out. However we are living closer and closer together, and on top of each other in high-rise apartments, therefore it's becoming more problematic.

Unlike NZ, many countries have had apartments living for years, but with all these new 'man-made' stresses, and every person having a mobile phone, as well as cell towers everywhere, the stress on people is increasing by the day. You must know where the invisible ones are, like Geopathic Stress. Let me help.

Celebration of cultures

At Country Bears we are recognising our fast changing community, not only in population growth, but also in the increase of different cultures.

Our New Zealand Curriculum Te Whāriki recognises a bi-cultural education. As individual teachers, we must first understand and accept ourselves and our own unique identities. Then, if we are able to view New Zealand as a bi-cultural country, we are able to accept and understand that New Zealand has diverse multi-cultural communities.

Children from a very early age are able to learn and understand languages and the difference between them. Even though they may themselves not be able to communicate verbally, their understanding of the languages are there. We often see with bilingual children the understanding comes really early on, and then the verbal communication in both languages follows shortly afterwards. The old saying "children are like sponges" is very appropriate in this instance.

Recently, we celebrated Diwali, the Festival of Lights, and the children were able to experience some traditional Indian snacks (provided to our centre by a parent), traditional hand painting and designs (similar to the henna designs), and the making of candles and mandalas using natural and creative mediums. We at Country Bears feel very strongly that if we can teach our children to have respect, they will grow up to be respectful and respected members of our community.

If you would like to visit our wonderful Centre, designed to provide the children space and time to develop at their own individual time, give us a call on 09 412 8055 to arrange a suitable time. In the meantime, check out our Facebook page: www.facebook.com/cbearsecc. Country Bears Early Childhood Centre, 79 Oraha Road, Kumeu - phone 09 4128055.

A day in the life of a Maori village

The kaumatua gather on the highest peak of the oldest maunga (mountain) where the sun has begun to shine upon the land filtering onto the ancient village where the whanau are awakening. Pakeke (adults) stand behind the sacred carvings that shield their village, while the chief presses his chapped lips to the putatara (conch shell). The visitors come with ketes full of kumara from the earth and shellfish from the sea. Wahine (women) in front and tangata (men) in the back. The elders move down the gravel path leading to the entrance. The visitors pass through the gates into the depths of the village to begin their powhiri. The pakeke pray their blessing on the land, their whanau and themselves. They pray to Ranginui (the sky father) and Papatuanuku (the earth mother) for the growth of their precious crops and weather suitable for the days they are yet to greet. They tend to the hearth of the fire burning into the sky, they teach their tamariki (children) how to prepare the hangi that lies beneath the fiery pit of flames. They sing around the fire binding them all together with the waiatas they sing of the past, the present and the future to come.

The tamariki learn to sing their wise elders' words, they learn the wisdom of the past, present and the future. They learn to weave, carve, anything important for the future. They learn to cultivate land and use the produce grown wisely. They play te raku, as the sun's last light burns in their eyes.

The Marama (moon) illuminates the river that flows through the centre of the village. The maunga stands tall guarding the people who sleep under the protection of their prayers. The bold totem poles with carvings of stories passed onto generations are seen from a great distance reminding other tribes of their presence in the small world that they know. The front of the village stands unguarded and peaceful.

If it doesn't feel right – then do it

There is a part of our brain, a way we operate has humans that wants to keep us safe. Some people call it our ego, some call it our unconscious brain. But it's keeping us stationary. This part of us wants us to stay in our comfort zone and doesn't want us to feel uncomfortable - ever. Believe me, if we just ignored this little wee voice the forward momentum in our lives would be extraordinary.

Most of us will live within our comfort zone our whole lives without ever realising it. Often the way we are 'being' hides from us.

My personal experience and what I have seen in clients is that life feels somehow dissatisfying, there is anger and sadness - we ask 'is this it?' Not realising that the gift of life has been right in front of us and we choose to stay where it feels 'right'. But it's not that it feels right, it's that it feels familiar. We are allowed to say no to someone, we are allowed to start that business, we are allowed to wear the funky dress in the wardrobe that we never wear. But we choose to stay where it feels comfortable. Almost everything in our lives right now is a bunch of lovely comfortable habits. Our perspective (or lack of) keeps us right where we are.

Most of the time new ideas or changing something in our lives is NOT going to lead to our demise or death. Usually once actioned, we would be either in the same position we are in now, or BETTR. Rising to a challenge usually brings deep satisfaction. We have all had fantastic ideas, and inspiring in the moment thoughts and it's us being creative and brave and authentic. Then the damn ego gets wind of it and we reason our way to 'it doesn't feel right, 'I don't have time' 'it's just not me' 'it's too expensive' 'I don't believe in it' 'I'll start tomorrow' 'I will look silly' or will even give us anxiety. We think about this future event and emotionally embrace it in negative self-debilitating ways. What we are resisting right now is our biggest teacher!

But how do we know the difference between intuition or gut feeling and negative self-talk? Gut instinct is different from thinking. Perhaps intuition or inner knowing happens in the present moment. It's what propels us to do something or not to do something, or it gives us that inspired idea. The negative after voice is thinking. It's us thinking about a future outcome. Mulling over how something might be in the future is not intuition.

That place where we make decisions from and reason from is not logical – it's emotional. Over 70% of the time our thoughts are negative, and keeping us stationary. Our thoughts come from our past. They only mean what we make them mean. Once we get our head around this we can start to take control. And this is just a habit too! Changing the thought and feeling is just practice. Great success stories, humans who have done amazing things in the world all had to push past a voice that said 'you can't do this'. Your voice isn't that special! Everyone bloody has one - stop listening to it.

Our resistance is teaching us something. Next time don't run - look at it for what it is. I give people visualisations to practice being in the space of 'yes of course I can'. Succession planning: safeguarding the future of your business Studies show that over half of New Zealand SMEs don't have any succession plan in place. A succession or exit plan is a formal plan that prepares you and your business for the future. Many business owners believe they don't need a succession plan because they are not planning on exiting the business for a long time. Ironically, though, succession plans are invaluable for preparing a business for the unexpected.

Succession/exit plans force business owners to consider their end goal and how they will get there - everyone's ideal future looks different. Some owners may want a strategic, overseeing role, while others will want to exit the company completely.

Succession takes thorough planning, and therefore we recommend beginning early - long before you actually intend to exit. Starting early prepares the business for sale or transition, provides more control over the timing and more chance of a successful outcome.

We have personally witnessed very different outcomes in businesses with a succession plan in place versus those without when the unexpected occurs, such as an illness or death. The devastation caused by these sudden events is difficult enough without the added pressure of trying to transition a business with no succession strategies in place.

Your local succession planning experts UHY Haines Norton are located at 329A Main Road, Kumeu. If you have any accounting, tax or business finance enquiries please phone them on 09 412 9853 or email kumeu@uhyhn.co.nz.

At Kumeu Montessori Preschool, our goal is to make learning irresistible, by providing an environment where each child's unique talents, beliefs and experiences are valued, where their interests are nurtured and where a child's natural love for life and learning are encouraged.

We believe that children learn through play and through structured teaching, and we offer richly varied opportunities for learning in both areas.

While our programme includes preparing children for the academic aspects of school, of greater importance is that they also develop the social and emotional skills they will need, not just at school, but in life. These skills include being able to focus on a task, follow directions, persevere, be able to take turns, impulse control, problem solving, negotiation and conflict resolution, being able to communicate well with other children and adults, and be able to articulate needs and feelings in a socially appropriate manner.

These skills are developed in both the playground and the classroom, creating happy, confident and lifelong learners.

Have a real celebration

I think it's a pity that here in New Zealand our summer holiday and Christmas are linked in tandem and we can't look forward to one until the other one is done. Christmas in the northern hemisphere is a very welcome short break from work that is focused on family, food, church and a bit of cheerful festivity. Their summer holiday in July is a stand alone rest time.

Whether it is a religious or secular celebration, it's great if you are in the mood for them, but they can be torturous when you are not. In December many average Mums and Dads are already exhausted from their normal life difficulties. You may have experienced work stress, marital stress, family disputes, illnesses or a life transition. You may be lonely and isolated. Not everyone has a family to celebrate with. Or the thought of being with your family for the day might stress you out as there are unresolved issues from the past that disturb your peace.

Why would you place yourself under additional stress to forcefully create a Happy Christmas? Does your inner perfectionist hold yourself up to extremely high standards? Do you collapse in the summer holiday to recover from the busy-ness generated by the relentless demands of this time of year? Psychotherapy with me can help you understand why you have approached the holidays the way you have, and could help you create a different experience this year.

Allow yourself to think "Bah Humbug" if that is genuine. Nothing bad will happen if you don't participate in the fake 'cheer'. Be real. Don't be a martyr. Give if you feel like giving. Go to parties if you feel like going. Make other people happy if that is what makes you happy, but feel free to create your own authentic way of doing that day. Ask other friends what they do to make sure the work of creating a happy Christmas doesn't fall on one person's shoulders. Think of creative ways to escape or participate in meaningful ways. It may sound obvious to say but we are free to choose.

For help with any or all of the above call Sarah Hamilton on 021 477 523.
